Quote of the week

Liberals only have empathy for the exact same victims -- always the ones that are represented by powerful liberal interest groups. -- Ann Coulter

On the issue of free speech things continue to plunge to new levels as the New Stalinism of the Liberal Elite tightens its grip.

In this issue we report on just two of far too many political prisoners now rotting in Her Majesty's prisons after spurious charges under the various (and far too many) Race and Religious 'hate' laws.

Throughout the UK - White Nationalists of all ages are serving unjust sentences for 'crimes' which would not have been crimes 40 odd years ago.

This madness of legal oppression started in 1968 with the passage of the Race Relations Act. The present and pretty extreme gagging law known as 'The Race Relations Act', formerly known as 'The Group Libel Law' was drafted by 'The Board of Jewish Deputies', and passed in 1965 by the Jewish Interior Minister (Home Secretary) in the Labour Government Sir Frank Soskice. Frank Soskice was not even British born; he came to Britain as a Russian immigrant, and he was not the only Jewish immigrant to play such a role.

In 1985, Harry Cohen introduced the Racial Harassment Bill under the ten-minute rule. It was the first Bill presented to Parliament to make racial attack a criminal offence.

One supposes that British Jewish MP's take the lead in just about every bit of Stalinist legislation because they consider themselves long suffering victims of racial oppression.

Be that as it may one has to wonder that throughout the 1970s and 1980s Neville Nagler, a synagogue official, was the head of the Home Office Department responsible for race relations matters. Whenever a Cabinet Minister made a speech on the subject of "race relations", notes for the text were always drafted by Nagler, who routinely consulted with top officials at the Jewish Board of Deputies such as Geoffrey Bindman and Anthony Lester. In 1991 Nagler retired from the Home Office and became the Chief Executive of the Board of Deputies of British Jews.

Whatever and whoever is responsible for the continuing turning of the screws on a Britons inalienable right to free speech, though and action - the fact remains that Britain now has a full range of oppressive laws which cast into the prisons all 'prisoners of conscience' who fall foul of these poisonous pieces of legislation.

Merkel - destroyer of the Western World by Invictus

At one time, Angela Merkel, the Chancellor of Germany, was considered a competent conservative, a successful national and international leader. A former citizen of Communist East Germany, she was a shining example of a new, united Germany who was admired both at home and abroad.

Those days are long gone...

Merkel, the queen of unlimited, undocumented Muslim immigration; the woman who allowed over a million Muslim refugees into Germany in 2015, is going down in history as the chancellor who destroyed Germany and indeed Western Europe.

Make no mistake about it; Europe is on its deathbed and Angela Merkel is the grim reaper, the Doctor Kevorkian of Germany, letting a fast drip IV of Muslim terror kill her nation and indeed Europe itself.

Merkel has shown her real colours during the last year, as a stubborn, arrogant blockhead who refuses to listen to the will of the German people.

Any Germans voicing their opposition with her delusional policies and the lunatic PC directives from the German Government is branded a racist and often arrested on trumped up hate crime charges.

Freedom of speech in Germany has virtually disappeared under Angela Merkel's reign of stupidity.

As the bullets fly and the bombs go off and the rapes continue, Merkel keeps telling Germany that they can do it. It's all going to work out with the million Third World Aliens that are their new guests.

No it's not. It's not working, it has never worked. It will never work. Islam is incompatible with Christianity and multi-culturalism, at least when it means Muslims and Christians living together is nothing more than a leftist pipe dream.

Why can't it work? Because the religion of peace is anything but that; it is the religion of violence and doom. And, Radical Islam, in all its forms is the enemy of everyone on this planet that believes in freedom and justice. The world will only move forward into the broad sunlight of liberty when Radical Islam is obliterated and its ashes spread to the four winds.

During the last two years, Germany has exploded with violence committed by the disciples of Allah - Isis and company.

In Munich, an 18 year old Iranian with a German passport went on a shooting spree after he had lured children to a McDonald's with the promise of free food on Facebook. In Reutlingen, a Syrian madman killed a pregnant Polish woman at a Kebab stand with a machete. In Ansbach, another Syrian detonated a suicide bomb, killing himself and injuring a dozen others. On a train in Bavaria, an Afghani refugee attacked passengers with an axe. And, recently in Bavaria, a suitcase bomb failed to detonate in a government office building. The German police are searching for two Arab-looking men. What a surprise...

The violence will continue unabated. There will be more bombings, more beheadings, more shootings and more German women being raped and molested.

It will go on because the Germans are weak, politically correct, feminized and the victims of socialism. The Germans of 2018 are not the swaggering studs their fathers and grandfathers were.

If you think Western man is emasculated, the men of Germany have been hen pecked and beaten down for four decades by bloated women brandishing Birkenstocks and cradle to grave government benefits. The result: a nation of socialist zombies severely lacking in testosterone and studliness.

German steel in 2018 is nothing but corrugated tin.

Radical Islam is having a field day in Germany. The madmen of ISIS know that any German men that could have stopped them are buried in the steppes of Russia, the fields of Normandy, the forests of the Ardennes and the sands of North Africa. The modern German man is the modern European man, a Eurotrash weakling so feckless that the very thought of bravado and the kind of brutality it will take to destroy ISIS, is abhorrent to a nation of men wearing capris and papooses.

The modern German man is incapable of securing his home, his street, his neighbourhood and his country.

Where have you gone Erwin Rommel? Germany turns its lonely eyes to you...

The question still remains. Why is Merkel doing this? Why is she destroying her country? What kind of patriot would willingly bring chaos and ruin upon their nation?

Perhaps Merkel is suffering from universal guilt brought on by the so-called "ovens of Auschwitz". I doubt it.

Perhaps Merkel is insane. That is a possibility. But, I think also there is something much more sinister behind Merkel's machinations. I think Angela Merkel, like Hillary Clinton, like Theresa May, is a member of the Globalist Establishment, the New World Order, the Illuminati, Bilderberg; those who clearly side with darkness over the light.

One great thing about the advent of Trump on the political scene, is the widespread discussion of a worldwide, or global establishment that is hell bent on ruining the economies of the United States and the West, waging endless wars and flooding sedate Europe with millions of young Muslim men, who enter the continent with nothing more than a haversack of Jihad and a pocketful of chaos. They have no interest in Europe, other than to conquer it by the old fashioned tactics of rape, pillage and violence.

Would any German leader who was decent and good and patriotic ever do such a thing to their country and indeed to the continent of Europe? There once was such a man but....

The answer is no. That's why Angela Merkel is insane, the devil incarnate or both; for the work she is doing, the death and destruction she is inducing on Germany is something only a demon could fabricate.

So, where is this all heading?

There really are only a few logical outcomes:

In the first scenario, the Germans blow a fuse, which is highly doubtful and then round up and deport millions of Muslims to UN safe zones in Syria that don't exist yet.

In the second scenario, a civil war breaks out, which is started in France by an irate French populace disgusted with the weak policies of Macron. The French take the law into their own hands. The civil war spreads to Germany. The Muslims begin to conduct a guerilla war and as the war rages on the continent, the outcome is unknown.

Why Angela Merkel has not been impeached and sent packing is a testament to the complete cowardice of the German government and the feebleness of the German electorate.

The Brexit dividend can fill the gaping hole in the NHS and stop other public services being raided.

A report by the Institute for Fiscal Studies and The Health Foundation has exposed the need for £95 billion of extra funding to maintain current standards for the NHS by 2033/34. Naturally, public debate is based around generating the additional revenue by hiking taxation – with the report suggesting up to an extra £2,000 per household, per year.

The NHS has required constant propping up, with significant amounts of additional revenue given to it over the last decade. Most of the funding has come from sharp cuts in vital public services such as defence, instead of cutting other weighty expenses like our bulging foreign aid budget. This is clearly unsustainable and undesirable.

What analysts are forgetting is a 'Clean Brexit' can reduce the burden on hard-up families and our integral public services due to recouping the monumental expenses of our membership of the European Union.

In 2016 a whopping net contribution of £7.6 billion (including the rebate and EU expenditure on our public and private sector) of British tax payers' money was expended as a consequence of our membership of the EU. This would generate £114 billion in revenue over 15 years, comfortably exceeding the required £95 billion target which has been set.

Even more income for the NHS can be gained after Brexit because lots of the money we currently get back, is not fully under Government control. As a consequence, the Government could direct this funding towards the NHS and other dwindling vital public services.

The Brexit dividend is however dependent on the Government securing the Clean Brexit which the Great British public has twice voted for during the EU Referendum and General Election. This requires leaving, among other things, expensive EU projects such as the Common Agricultural Policy.

Furthermore, immediate boosts to the NHS can be made by scrapping the £10 billion per year transition period and leaving with no deal, saving the £40 billion 'divorce fee.'

Obviously, debates can be had about the merits of such measures. Some may argue giving businesses the certainty of the transition period and negotiating preferential access to the Single Market will be financially beneficial for tax payers overall. The important thing however is Brexit allows these avenues to be considered whereas before the Referendum they would never have been an option.

Another reason a Clean Brexit can be vital to the NHS is Britain's wider prosperity; a richer Britain will naturally generate higher tax revenues. We must be able to sign free trade agreements with the rest of the world – something impossible while we remain a member of the Customs Union.

America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Switzerland and many more nations have been incredibly vocal about their genuine intent to sign comprehensive free trade deals with a post-Brexit Britain. Amazing trade opportunities exist outside of the EU, especially considering predictions from the International Monetary Fund over the next 10-15 years that 90% of global economic growth will be from the rest of the world.

In addition, a post-Brexit Britain – free from the constraints of the Customs Union – will no longer be subject to the restrictive and protectionist Common External Tariff, which makes non-EU goods more expensive for British businesses to import. Britain would also be able to be more competitive and flexible as a trading partner than the EU, as our trade deals will not require ratification from 27 Member States with wildly diverging needs.

Ideally of course, a good deal with the EU, one which secures preferential access to the Single Market and recovers vast sums of our money while freeing us from the restrictive rules of the EU, is preferable to better enable us to fund our NHS. However failing this, the Government must be strong enough to walk away if a good deal becomes untenable.

As a consequence, the Brexit dividend and related benefits to our public services, rely on the Government understanding the very strong hand Britain has in negotiations, and being prepared to leave with no deal if the EU will not arrive at a fair one. Ideas like the backstop, and continued membership of the Customs Union and Single Market are not conducive to such a conclusion.

The news of the huge funding gap which will arise in the NHS over the coming future is another reason why after the people voted to get Britain out, a 'Clean Brexit' could be more vital than ever.

Sheffield, Yorkshire has hit ROCK BOTTOM! The Mayor of Sheffield - wait for it - one Magid Magid, a Somalian 'refugee' has stated the following in a Tweet :

"I Magid Magid, Lord Mayor & first citizen of this city hereby declare that not only is Donald J Trump (@realDonaldTrump) a WASTEMAN, but he is also henceforth banned from the great city of Sheffield!! further declare July 13th to be Mexico Solidarity Day!"

This creature is a Councillor for the Green Party, being pushed by them into the position of Lord Mayor of Sheffield.

When first reading this I thought it was a joke (it is I suppose - a bad one), but no, this man is actually Lord Mayor of our once great Steel City of the North.

Its obvious too by looking at his photo, that he's not the 'Full Monty'.

What do the native Britons of Sheffield, Yorkshire folk all, make of this ghastly revelation?

This aberration could not even speak English for the first part of his life.

Here's a description of his 'dignified inauguration as Lord Mayor :-

wanting to rid the post of its archaic nature, Magid was also the first to swear during his inaugural speech.

He thanked his mother 'for putting up with all the s****' he'd caused her over the years.

The nontraditional theme didn't stop there as Magid picked the Imperial March from Star Wars followed by the Superman theme tune to play while guests and elected members took their seats in the town hall to welcome their new Lord Mayor

For his inaugural portrait the Green Party councillor, also known as 'Magic Magid', decided to illustrate just how unconventional he planned to be.

Donning black Dr Martens and squatting on top of the staircase in Sheffield Town Hall, Magid looked like the city's own 'Batman' as many dubbed him.

Now they come for Tin-Tin!

Vatican newspaper has touted the comic book character Tintin as "a Catholic hero".

Relocating a Tintin book to the adult shelves of British bookstores is an example of "politically correct lunacy", says the official Vatican newspaper.

L'Osservatore Romano has hailed the popular character in the book as "a hero of Catholicism" and said it was ridiculous that "Tintin in the Congo" had been "wrapped up like a pornographic magazine and consigned to the adults-only section" of British book shops.

Generally reflecting the views of the Vatican, the newspaper questioned whether the act of censorship - on the grounds that the comic book is racist - was "an appropriate protection of the defenceless children of Her Majesty, or politically correct lunacy in the shadow of Big Ben."

Copies of "Tintin in the Congo" have been moved to adult shelves of British bookstores and publisher Egmont UK are selling the book wrapped in protective packaging complete with a warning label across the front cover because it has been branded racist for its depiction of Africans and contains content that some people "may find offensive." But a Belgian judicial advisor recently recommended the country's courts reject a legal bid to have the book banned for racism on the grounds that "the representations (of African people) by [author] Hergé are a reflection of his time."

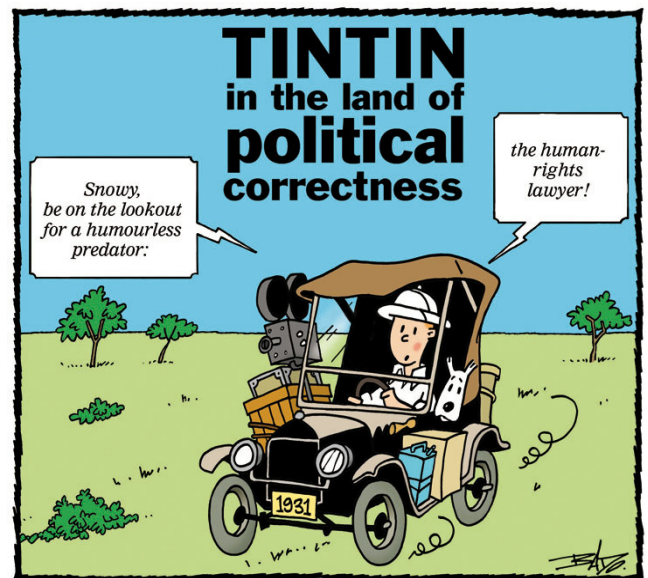

An editorial in L'Osservatore Romano agreed, and argued that the comic book reflected the values prevalent in Europe between the wars. "It is essential to take into account the historical context to avoid entering the realm of the ridiculous," the newspaper said "The comic book was published in the 1930's, and for that reason expresses the values of the era - but can it really perturb young Britons of today, raised as they are on the Internet, video games and fish and chips?"

The Italian newspaper has even touted Tintin as "an angel" and his curious and adventurous character showed a liking to someone who had "come to earth to defend widows and orphans."

It claims that the indigenous characters featured throughout the Tintin series are never evil, but are instead the "target of the voracity of the evil money makers of multinationals." The broadsheet's front page story on Tuesday said Tintin was driven by "a sacred moral imperative - to save the innocent and conquer evil."

"Tintin is a Western knight of modern times, an unstained heart in an invulnerable body," it said.

The Italian newspaper did acknowledge that the Tintin comic books represented "the paternalistic clichés of the era in which the Belgians exploited the Congo."

@ Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir,

Before the World Cup began, England fans were issued with an official warning not to wave the flag in public – that is, not to show support for their national team – as it would mark them out as racists and imperialists in Russia. Deputy chief constable Mark Roberts, the head of football policing for Britain's National Police Chiefs Council (who knew?), announced that, 'People need to be really careful with flags. It can come across as almost imperialistic... and can cause antagonism. We really urge some caution about people putting flags out and waving them about in public.'

The liberal media were soon expressing their own flag-phobia. One senior liberal commentator observed that people like him wouldn't wave one because of the assumption that 'You fly the flag, you're a close-our-borders, take-back-control, I'm-not-racist-but Brexiteer who brushes away a tear at the first strains of the national anthem. You fly the flag and you're a gammon-faced Middle Englander one heart-pump away from a coronary as you spit bile from the fourth row of the Question Time audience. You fly the flag, you're a bulldog-tattooed, shaven-headed, there's-no-black-in-the-Union-Jack sports casual yomping around London fuelled by cheap lager and steak bakes, demanding the release of the English Defence League's jailed founder Tommy Robinson.' And they talk about Leavers exhibiting sweeping irrational prejudices... (his words not mine!)

This is surely one reason why there were noticeably fewer England flags on show in some areas before this World Cup. It wasn't only about the (understandably) lowered expectations attached to the team. It was also about Brexit.

Dear Sir,

Abortion advocates claim, "It doesn't matter if you think abortion is right or wrong. What matters is "who decides--the woman or the state?"

I wonder if these people would say the same thing about rape. Like abortion, it is an intensely personal issue. Like abortion, it involves people making decisions about their bodies. Like abortion, it involves another person who is not consenting.

Laws against rape do not let the government decide who gets raped. They are based on civilized people deciding that there are some things you just can't be allowed to do. Forcing your personal desires and beliefs on another person should not be allowed.

Abortion clearly involves ending the life of another human being. Some people like to argue about whether this human being is a "person" or not. That isn't relevant. Many rapists don't consider women to be real people. We still don't let them act on that belief.

Civilized societies do not let some individuals decide to kill other individuals. Just because abortion advocates have an unusual belief does not mean we should let them impose that belief on others. Since we cannot ask the unborn children what they believe about their own personhood, let's give them the benefit of the doubt. Isn't that the least we'd want for ourselves if our very lives were at stake?

The Destruction Of Detroit

In 2018, 80% of Detroit residents are Black. About 50% are unemployed. Around 2/3 never graduate high school. Drugs are the number one product that keeps much of city afloat. Most of the blame is on government. What they did and didn't do will shock you. At the height of the economic boom here, Detroit was once the fourth largest city in America. Also a lot of people do not realize that about 85% of Detroit's growth came before 1930. Many of the buildings are still there. Another fact is Detroit has been run by Democrats for most of its existence. And by Black Democrats since 1974. Many of the facts here will probably provoke outrage and denial by many people, because many are unable to recognize or acknowledge reality. People unable and incapable of handing the truth. Not everyone has common sense. So let's examine Detroit.

Some say Detroit's decline really started in the 50's. The population was once around 2 million in 1950. But in 2010 it had dropped to around 700,000. Perhaps less. Also in the 1950's the White population of Detroit declined by roughly 23%. However during the same decade, the Black population increased to around 200%. And in the mid 1960's Blacks in Detroit were roughly 40%. The Black population further increased after the 1967 riots when more Whites left. Whites wanted no part of living in Detroit. With this change in racial population came more crime, social problems, and discrimination.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young: The role that government played in ruining Detroit was huge. Corruption, fraud, incompetence, and greed went on for decades. But under Mayor Coleman Young from 1974-1994, he accelerated the decline of the city. Young did little to nothing to help Detroit. What he was really good at was making excuses for Detroit. The same Coleman Young who was a former organizer of the UAW. The same Coleman Young that was booted out by the union for being too radical. Many White people who worked in the Coleman administration say blacks were promoted more than Whites even though they had less experience. In 1982 there were six federal investigations involving the water and sewer departments in Detroit. Since the mid 70's the city failed to meet federal water standards. Also imagine a mayor persuading people to raise taxes on themselves while Detroit cuts services. Many former White residents say Young wanted to make Detroit an all black city for his own personal gain. Well he certainly succeeded at that.

Former Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick: This guy was the king of extortion, bribery, fraud, corruption, lying, and mismanagement. He was basically a thug in a suit. His lists of escapades are very long. The things he did and the lengths he took them are shocking. He was mayor January 2002 to September 2008. For starters, a reported sex party at the mayor's mansion in 2002 was never officially proven, (Many say the party never happened. However, police officers on the mayor's Executive Protection Unit testified in court it did happen. Everyone knows cops will lie about events, not reveal them.) however strippers were involved and one of them, Tamara Greene, reportedly was beaten up by Kilpatrick's wife Carlita when she came home unexpectedly and found Greene giving the mayor a lap dance. Greene was later targeted and killed as she sat in her car with her boyfriend (the boyfriend survived) in the early morning hours of April 2003 in a drive-by shooting.

The list of political corruption goes on.....Governor Jennifer Granholm....and on. .Monica Conyers..and on... in 2013 - finally, former Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick received a prison sentence of 28 years for being a racketeering gangsta.

Detroit in 1950 - bustling and prosperous

On December 3, 2013 Detroit became the largest U.S. city to enter bankruptcy. Detroit has 18 billion in debt and unfunded liabilities. There are 23,000 city retirees receiving pensions that will be affected by the ruling. Also the city owes roughly 100,000 creditors. Judge Steven Rhodes said the path will be painful for Detroit. There is no question that a lot of assets will be sold during this process. In conclusion, many believe Detroit had its chance to continue be a good city and they blew it. They blew it big. Everyone mentioned here had a hand in the city being destroyed. Everyone. Of course some played a much larger role. Detroit is a great example of what happens when greed and corruption runs rampant. And unchecked. And honest people can't lie or spin the fact that Black liberals ran everything in Detroit since 1974. And the world sees the results. Without question Detroit is a pathetic disgrace and embarrassment to itself. And to America.

Simon Sheppard jailed for nine months in latest 'opinion crime'

(From Heritage and Destiny)

Simon Sheppard, author, publisher and Yorkshireman, whose principled defiance of the race relations industry led to his imprisonment after a notorious extradition from the USA.

Yorkshire-based author Simon Sheppard was jailed yesterday for the latest in a series of 'opinion crimes'. A judge at York Crown Court sentenced Mr Sheppard to nine months imprisonment after a jury convicted him of using "racially aggravated words" to a Sky engineer fitting a satellite dish to the next door flat in Selby, North Yorkshire.

The words were not aimed at the engineer, but referred to Mr Sheppard's complaints against his black neighbour. The jury acquitted Mr Sheppard of waging what the prosecution had called "a two-year racial harassment campaign".

Mr Sheppard is perhaps best known for his attempt in 2008 to claim political asylum in the USA after an earlier conviction under Britain's infamous race laws. Neither that nor this recent conviction would have amounted to criminal offences in the USA, where Mr Sheppard's alleged 'criminal' conduct would be covered by the Constitution's protection of free speech.

Book Review

The Camp Of The Saints - Jean Raspail (1973)

Amazon Ppbk - £8.70 Kindle - £7.66

This book was our warning. The only difference between when this book was written and now is the crazy notion of open borders within the EU. So instead of ships, the 'refugees' are literally walking into the West. However, the political correctness and usual shaming language we hear from yesterday's Socialists (now known as Progressives) is all in this book. It would seem that one by one, each left wing character in the book meets his/her demise via one of the 'bleeding heart' causes they spent years defending and/or fighting for. Each left winger in the book hates who they are, hates the colour of their skin, hates the west and wants revenge for some insignificant past event/discovery with regards to their ancestry. It's only in the last moments of their shameful lives do they realise they were wrong...so wrong.

In our view, the book identifies the difference between the Western World and the 3rd World in that freedom of instinct runs riot in the 3rd World. The left strives to defend 'freedom of instinct' under the guise of various 'causes' and 'campaigns' which are all there to undermine conservative civilisation who are content for 'things' to remain as they are. Like it or not, the western world was built on thousands of battles and millions of deaths. The western world dealt with its demons, yet the Left want to let in the demons of the 3rd World into the western world and in massive numbers too. When you disagree with the Left, you're asked "where is your compassion?". Compassion, the get out of jail card for all wrong doings. The book highlights all the tricks of the trade when it comes to the Left.

However, the depressing aspect of the book is how the West has been dumbed down and, oddly enough, through guilt and shaming such as the constant bombardment of "donate to famine" and "save this child" campaigns. The book correctly identifies that such causes DO NOT want the donation of goods, they want money and if you don't hand over money then you're shamed via more shocking images. Oddly enough, today all I see on the Underground is the same campaigns, the same shaming and the same guilt trips. We must donate or the kid in the picture will die. Yet no-one asks why we have to donate? Our govt hands over billions to those countries yet STILL we have to donate or else we're shamed?

The book also describes how the rot of the Left is prevalent in our schools and Universities. Parents are forced to bite their tongues when their children come home with a grade A marked essay which fits in with the Left wing views of the teacher. The book correctly identifies how children do not want to be 'left out' so tow the line when they notice only a certain opinion on 'refugees' or 'migrants' will get an A grade from their teacher. Meanwhile, their parents have to sit back and say nothing.

In the book, the police and the military have been shamed by the Left over the years. Public opinion has been turned against the defence of the nation. So when it comes down to the moment when the nation has to be defended...well...the soldiers and the police desert. Hardly surprising and the same thing has happened in the UK, where the Left pick and choose 'worthy crimes' which fit their own views on 'equality'.

The eye opener in this book is the moment when the western nations attempt to deliver food and aid to the refugee ships only to see that food and aid thrown overboard by the refugees. We've seen the same thing with the 'migrant' crisis where food and aid is thrown back at the lefties who hand out such food and aid. Same thing has happened in the Calais jungle where aid has literally been set on fire by the 'migrants'.

The message in this book is very clear. The enemy is not the refugees, the enemy is within and the enemy is your 'own kind'.
